

IMMIGRATION GIVE GUIDE

Campaign for a Just East Bay (CAMP) <https://www.ebcf.org/campaign-for-a-just-east-bay/>

Give to CAMP if you are looking for a one-stop-shop for community impact in the East Bay.

Because no single organization can create the just and inclusive East Bay we all deserve, CAMP pools our community’s resources in a central fund to magnify our collective impact and accelerate change. In the 2024 fiscal year, CAMP mobilized $4.2M in strategic and responsive grants, enabling community leaders to focus on their missions of making the East Bay a better place to dream, heal, and belong. By making a gift to CAMP, you support EBCF’s core grantmaking as well as our leadership work across the East Bay.

Faith In Action East Bay (FIAEB) <https://fiaeastbay.org/>
Mujeres Unidas Y Activas (MUA) <https://mujeresunidas.net/>

Give to these groups if you are looking to support EBCF Core Grantees that are bringing organizations together to meet the collective needs of immigrant communities in the East Bay.

Collaborative efforts are especially important at this moment. MUA and FIAEB are key leaders in organizing and defending immigrants in the East Bay. FIAEB is one of the lead organizations in the Alameda County Immigration Legal and Education Partnership (<https://www.acilep.org/>), supporting individuals facing imminent risk of arrest by ICE. Both groups address these attacks at the policy level and directly with impacted individuals and families in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. This includes holding town hall meetings and Know Your Rights trainings, providing immediate services, and working with elected officials to ensure protection for vulnerable communities. MUA focuses on working women and is a resource for Mam-speaking immigrants from Guatemala and FIAEB has a faith-based approach.

Centro Legal De La Raza <https://www.centrolegal.org/>

Give to this organization if you are looking to fund local and frontline defense of East Bay immigrants, especially those facing deportation.

Local organizations are positioned to make a substantial impact at this moment. Supporting groups like Centro Legal De La Raza, which has been working at the local level for decades, is an important way to support change here in the East Bay. Headquartered in Oakland, Centro Legal is leading efforts around deportation defense in the East Bay and across the Bay Area.

Black Alliance for Just Immigration: BAJI <https://baji.org/>
Priority Africa Network (PAN) <https://www.priorityafrica.org/>

Give to these organizations if you want to support underrepresented African and Black immigrant communities.

Both PAN and BAJI work at the intersection of immigrant and racial justice, building bridges between Black immigrants and African-American communities. BAJI's community organizing efforts aim to advance racial, social and economic justice. PAN also specializes in leadership development, conducts a "Know Your Rights" workshop for community members, and has mental health services for those impacted by immigration related stress.

Immigrant Institute of the Bay Area (IIBA) <https://iibayarea.org/>

Give to this organization if you want to support individuals and families navigating pathways to citizenship or if you are especially interested in supporting family reunification cases related to deportation.

Among the many challenges facing immigrants, family separation has been and continues to be one of the most critical. IIBA is one of the organizations known for supporting reunification cases for refugees, temporary protective status holders, and their families. They also play a key role in supporting individuals in their pathway towards citizenship.
